

Creating Areas for Nature Countryside Management Partnerships

Kent County Council takes an active role in protecting and enhancing our countryside, supporting Countryside Management Partnerships across the county. These bring together lots of organisations to help maintain Kent's landscape and wildlife, as well as support Kent's communities.

When creating your area for nature, the Countryside Management Partnerships can help you with the following:

- Establishing your soil type and the right kinds of plants for your site.
- Advising you on the health and safety issues related to the relevant activities, and helping with risk assessments.
- Putting you in contact with local contractors and suppliers as necessary.
- Carrying out project planning and delivery from start to finish, if you would prefer not to carry out the works yourself.
- Advising on local biodiversity and habitats.
- Providing volunteer power.

To establish which of the partnerships serves your area, simply find your Borough from the list below.
